

THEATRE COLLAPSE DEATH LIST 113-MAY REACH 125

PLEASURE SEEKING THEATRE PATRONS ARE CRUSHED BENEATH TONS OF STEEL AND CONCRETE

Survivors Tell Harrowing Tales Of Experiences In Escaping From One Of The Worst Accidents Recorded In The History Of Modern Building

CONSTRUCTION WAS OF HOLLOW TILE

Washington, D. C., January 30.—The death toll caused by the collapse of the Knickerbocker Theatre roof here Saturday night, one of the greatest moving picture theatre disasters in the history of the country, was set at 113 late today. Deaths were reported hourly from the hospitals throughout the city, where 144 injured victims of the disaster, many of whom are near death, were being cared for. With the death list constantly mounting it is believed it will pass 125.

Pennsylvanians In Tragedy.

The Pennsylvania casualties included Dr. A. J. Barchfield, former Congressman of the South Side, Pittsburgh; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elmer Barchfield, and Lewis Strayer, Washington correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch. E. H. Shaughnessy, Second Assistant Postmaster General, is in a critical condition from injuries received in the theatre horror. His legs were mangled and he suffered from internal injuries. He is not expected to live.

All Victims Removed From Debris.

The rescue squad, who have been working frantically to rescue those who were still living, believed this morning that all of the victims, living and dead, had been removed. Workers were still carrying out debris this morning, however, in continuation of the search.

Heroes Stolen—Now They Will Lock Door.

Several investigations as to the cause of the catastrophe were started today. Senator Arthur Capper will demand that the Senate Investigating Committee make a complete inquiry and a similar request probably will be made in the House. The local building inspector and the Coroner have ordered comprehensive probes. A Coroner's jury will probably be empaneled today.

Rescuers Continue Search.

When dawn swept over the stunned city an army of rescuers picked, shoveled and hauled away at the debris, many working for hours and practically combing the ruins twice, so that it was impossible that there could be other bodies there.

No Chance For Escape.

Most of those in the theatre had no chance for escape. Most of the corpses had an arm outstretched in a cramped position, as though the person had sought to ward off the crushing weight. Only a few persons could crawl out to the street through crevices where the masonry had merely formed an arch instead of pinning them down.

Owner is Bowled

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Harry C. Crandall, the owner of the Knickerbocker Theatre and of several other moving picture houses in the city, is bewildered as to the cause of the disaster. Reports state that the manager of the Knickerbocker called Crandall on Saturday and suggested that the snow be removed from the roof, but that the architect said it was unnecessary. The theatre is located at Columbia Road, a few blocks from the Capitol, and in the heart of the fashionable district. Experts are making investigations to ascertain if the roof was properly reinforced. Much of the theatre was constructed of hollow tile.

Interesting Oddities

Several freak occurrences accompanied the crash. Dr. Borden, Police Surgeon, and his wife were at the main entrance when the roof fell. The rush of air through the doorway hurled them across the sidewalk and into the street as it did several persons near them.

Colonel C. W. Wessen, who was injured, directed the removal of the body of his dead wife.

Raymond J. Brown came out alive when a huge slab of concrete buckled and made an arch over him. His only loss was his pocket book which was swept away when his pocket was torn from his coat.

Representative Smithwick, of Florida, was cut painfully by a block of concrete but succeeded in wedging his way to the street. He declared that the comparatively few minutes which this operation required seemed an eternity.

The Secretary of the Papal Legation came to administer the last rites to the dying and a priest gave medicine to some who begged that they be put out of their misery with a blow of the fireman's axes.

ROSSITER UNION STANDS BACK OF PRESIDENT LEWIS

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Jan. 28.—The internal division in the ranks of the miners' union in this section has been emphasized by the latest turn in the organization's affairs.

The Rossiter Local No. 1736 of the United Mine Workers of America has taken issue with Herman E. Carletti, who recently telegraphed John L. Lewis, president of the International U. M. W. of A., asking for his resignation.

In a resolution passed by the local the action of Board Member Carletti is condemned and the policies of President Lewis upheld. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, we the members of Local Union No. 1736, U. M. W. of A. of District No. 2, Territory No. 6, of Rossiter, Pa., having had our attention drawn to a telegram recently sent by Herman E. Carletti to our international president, John L. Lewis demanding his resignation, and whereas, we firmly believe that President John L. Lewis has sincerely carried out the instructions as laid down by the recent international convention of our union, and

"Whereas, the above mentioned telegram is very misleading. There fore be it resolved that we, the members of Local Union No. 1736 U. M. W. of A. condemn the action of Herman E. Carletti, local member of Territory No. 5 of District No. 2 U. M. W. of A. and we firmly believe it was not done for the best interest of organized labor.

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to President John L. Lewis, the U. M. Workers Journal, the District No. 2 Executive Board and the Punxsutawney Spirit.

RAILROAD'S EXCESS EARNINGS MUST BE GIVEN OVER TO U. S.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Railroads which earned more than six per cent upon the value of their property used in transportation during the period from September 1, 1920 to January 1, 1921 are required under an order issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission to turn half the excess, so earned over to the Government.

The order as issued by the Commission makes effective sections of the Transportation Act of 1920 and prescribes rules for the application of those sections.

Railroads during the four months period specified in the order are understood to have earned a considerable amount in excess of the six per cent.

Cannot Be Calculated

Limitation prescribed by Congress, but the valuations not having been given out for the individual lines the amounts cannot yet be calculated.

The Transportation Act in addition to providing that until March 1, 1922 rates should be made by the Interstate Commerce Commission sufficient to give the railroads at least 5 1/2 per cent on their properties provided for the recovery by the government of half of all the amount earned by any road over six per cent.

The commission in fixing the rates found a tentative value for railroad property by groups throughout the United States but did not segregate this to individual roads.

CHARLES ASKEY OF OSCEOLA MILLS IS BOOTLEGGER SAYS DEPUTY GILLILAND

Gilliland And Aide
Aver They Caught Him
Red Handed And Have Him Held For Court.

$1,500 BAIL IS SET

The nitcher that goes too often to the well, finally comes to grief, and that appears to be the situation of Charles Askey, of Osceola Mills, who is alleged to have been engaged in more or less illegal liquor running throughout this section. He was arrested at Osceola Saturday by Deputy Sheriff F. S. Gilliland and Detective L. O'Donnell, of Junesville, charged with violation of the liquor law.

The information charging liquor law violation and upon which the warrant for Askey's arrest was issued was made before Judge Chorpennings by Deputy Gilliland under instructions from District Attorney Arnold.

Caught With the Goods
The officers allege they caught Askey disposing of some liquor getting him red-handed in the act.

First Step in Clean Up

The arrest of "Red" Askey is believed to be the first step in a movement which will result in a general clean-up of the moonshining, rum-running and bootlegging business, which has caused so much trouble and unfavorable comment throughout this region. Askey is alleged to have been one of the "inner circle" in his nefarious business, and whether or not these allegations were true will doubtless be determined by circumstances to follow this arrest.

Gives $1500 Bail

Askey gave bail in the sum of $1500 for his appearance at February term of Criminal Court as District Attorney Arnold is preparing his case for presentation to the Grand Jury which meets Monday, February 6th.

BOGGS TOWNSHIP SUPERVISORS WILL BE SUED BY HOLMES

The suit against W. B. Holmes, the dryman mentioned in The Progress Saturday evening will undoubtedly result in a damage suit against the Supervisors of Boggs township, as the accident out of which Mr. Gullerton's suit grows, was in no wise due to the fact that a weak and dilapidated bridge beyond Woodland failed to withstand the loaded truck and when same gave way allowing the truck to drop down into a spring. Part of the household goods fell off and what damage was done occurred at this time.

Mr. Ward Fleming, Esq., entered suit in Prothonotary Talbot's office this morning on behalf of the Raystone Auto Gas and Oil Company, who are seeking to recover $750 from Charles Berlar, of Becchia township, which the plaintiff company alleges is due them for supplies furnished.

"Big Angelo" Refused New Trial And Must Appear For Sentence

Angelo Caramella, the DuBois man better known in the third class city as "Big Angelo," who was convicted at December term of Criminal Court on a charge with intent to kill to kill, which charge grew out of the attempt to blow up, with dynamite the residence of Leonard Caramella, brother of Angelo, on "the Flat" of DuBois, several weeks previous.

There had been bad blood between the Caramella families, growing out of the raiding of a poker joint in which both families were interested and in which the attempt was made to "pass the buck" of blame therefor from one to the other.

Shortly after the "poker business" was cleaned up, by the fine and imprisonment of Patsy Caramella, son of Leonard, against whom his uncle Angelo, a partner in the game testified, a feud arose between the families, and a dynamite explosion wrecked the front of Patsy's pool room, on one of DuBois' main streets. Then followed the exploding of a dynamite charge on the front porch of Leonard Caramella's home, a few doors from his brother Angelo's residence. Leonard, aroused by a noise a few minutes before the dynamite let go, testified that he saw Angelo running from the scene and entering his home.

These facts were all brought out at the trial, which resulted in Angelo's conviction. His attorneys made a motion for a new trial, alleging error in the admission of evidence and the charge of the Court, but after carefully reviewing the evidence Judge Bell holds that the trial was fair and impartial and dismissing the appeal decrees that no new trial should be granted.

"Big Angelo," who has been out on bail pending Judge Bell's decision, will now be summoned to court for sentence.

The court decided for the Government in four suits brought by persons who sought to hold and remove whiskey from Government warehouses for private use.

Charles Nelo Said To Have Been Accused Of Being Stool Pigeon
Prior To Shooting

INQUEST T O D A Y

DuBois, Pa., Jan. 30.—Charles Nelo who formerly lived at the corner of Kuntz and Sandy Streets, was murdered last night between 8:30 and 9 o'clock, being shot in the right cheek and in the right shoulder. The shooting occurred in the basement of the home occupied by Tony Ego, 16 Oxford Avenue and Ego was taken into custody by the officers pending a further investigation. Caramella Benefante, brother-in-law of the dead man and Dominick Alfante, were held as material witnesses. Benefante, when he went to the cellar and saw the body of his brother-in-law fainting dead away, and for the greater part of the evening was in a comatose condition. He would arouse sufficiently at times to bemoan the sad death of his relative. The condition of Benefante gave rise to the rumor that one man had been killed and another wounded within a few feet of the dead one.

There was a gathering of relatives at the Pulci home last evening according to the stories of a number of witnesses, a card game was in progress, but these witnesses were careful to say that it was "just for fun." But for some reason connected to the story, one of the players was not having very good luck, and he decided another one of being a stool pigeon in the late liquor raids on the flat. These two had a little set to, but nowhere does it appear that either the lead man or the man held as a suspect entered into it. The stories told declare Pulci suddenly went to a bureau drawer in another room, took out a revolver and left the room. Witnesses then declared they heard six shots; that Pulci returned with the revolver and shouted "my God, my godfather is dead." He was asked who killed him and he is alleged to have replied he did not know. It is then declared he reloaded the revolver and went out doors. It is further alleged that he went out to the barn and the belief prevails that he hid the gun. The revolver was not found, but the empty shells were later found by the officers investigating.

When the officers arrived they found Nelo lying at the cellar door entrance. The cellar is reached by a ground level door that opens at right angles to the door leading into the cellar proper, there being a space between the outer door and the cellar door. The dead man had fallen back across the threshold of the cellar door.

It is quite evident that Nelo was not shot from outside, as claimed by Pulci when first questioned. All indications point to the fact that he was shot by someone behind him in the cellar. It is believed whoever did the shooting went from the interior of the house to the cellar by way of the indoor stairs. One of the shots—that in the cheek—was fired at close range as the cheek is burned from the jaw.

The case presents some puzzling features that may be cleared up by the coroner's inquest today. Coroner Polum went to the scene of the crime and conducted an investigation, after ordering the body removed to the morgue where it was prepared for burial. The inquest will be held this afternoon at the city building.

Clair McCorkle, clerk in Bohann's grocery store, who fell over a box while assisting in unloading a wagon on Friday last suffered a fractured knee cap in the fall and will be laid up for several weeks.

Favorable Reply From Japan Settles All Naval Problems

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—All naval questions of the Washington Conference were practically settled today when a reply was received from the Japanese Government regarding the Pacific Islands fortifications which was said to contain general approval of the plan of Secretary Hughes and Arthur J. Balfour for the fortification of the Pacific Islands of the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

ODDS AND ENDS
AND THINGS

By "Skinney"

When a man receives a salary of $150,000 a year for "writing pieces for the newspaper," what he says ought to be worth while. Here is what Arthur Brisbane of Hearst's New York American says about nervous women. Read it. It is worth while.

Nervous women suffer from too much (or not enough) fat. A fat woman is nervous, unhappy, because of defective metabolism, which means the processes that build up tissue, then break it down and get rid of it when it has served its purpose.

Being too thin is responsible for more nervousness than being too fat. Women have a ridiculous idea that to be "skinny" is to be beautiful. To be NORMAL is the only beauty. Ask Phidias. From one year to fourteen, a female should be round and cozy; from fourteen to eighteen, thin; from eighteen to twenty-five, plump, but still comparatively thin; from twenty-five to forty she should slowly put on from 15 to twenty five pounds. She should stay that way until seventy-five, when the extra pounds should gradually disappear, bringing her back at ninety to the figure and weight of sixteen. And she can be just as interesting, mentally, at ninety as at nineteen, to any man with an ounce of brains.

A really thin woman of thirty-five or forty is abnormal, as unpleasant to the knowing eye, and in as dangerous condition, physically and nervously, as a very thin baby. Let women remember that and eat sensibly, and there will be fewer nervous "break-downs."

June's figures for the payment of poor relief to one person in every 29 of the population in New York City have not been equalled for forty-eight years.

We are unable as yet to agree with the fellow who thinks the worth-while things in the world or that part of it embraced within the confines of the United States of America were accomplished by the Republic, can't party, and when we find a fellow who has such an insane idea, and proceeds to spout about it in season and out, we think it about time for somebody somewhere some time to rub that fellow's head with Herpicide or something else that will soak into soft places. That being true we have no trouble in agreeing with the young Democrats who have to listen to the silly twaddle daily that any High School instructor who devotes two thirds of his history lesson each day to the spouting of his silly partisan political beliefs, should hire a hall in which to extol the virtues of the party of his choice. With the preponderating Republican majority in Pennsylvania that party can easily get by without school room propaganda, or at least it should be able to do so. Then, too, as our late friend Matthew Prior once said: "The never taste who always drink; They always talk who never think."

Clearfield county produces more honey than any other county in the central part of the State, according to the State Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg.

Clearfield, Pa., Jan. 25, 1922

Dear Skinney:

I want to thank you for your little squib concerning chiropractic and chiropactors. It undoubtedly will be a surprise to some of our medical friends to learn that the Palmer school (of which I am a graduate) has an eighteen months residence course when they so freely give us credit for being a "six weeks correspondence" graduate.

Besides being a high school graduate, your local chiropactor has collegiate credits in chemistry, physics and biology which would permit him to enter any class A. medical school in this country. He also possesses the acquaintance of many other college men in the chiropractic profession, which relieves the stigma of the grammar school, preparation to some extent.

We admit we are ignoramuses when it comes to materia medica and surgery, neither of which is taught in chiropractic schools, but inasmuch as we do not prescribe the former nor practice the latter, we consider it a gross injustice to be compelled to pass examinations in these subjects, as our medical friends recommend, before entering into competition with them.

Nature's immutable law, the survival of the fittest, holds good here as in every other field of endeavor. Permit me to thank you for this imposition on your "column" and let me assure you I am proud to be.

OLD GOBBLER KEPT PEACE

Intelligence Displayed by Turkey Proved Him the "Right Bird in the Right Place."

Unlike the ordinary run of turkeys, Ben, a mannikin bronze gobbler that one of our contributors owned, had a great deal of sense. One day, our friend writes, one nearest neighbor's entire flock of turkeys invaded our farmyard and soon started a "free-for-all" fight with our birds. The two old gobblers engaged in combat; young gobblers fought young gobblers; and old turkey hens clashed.

A week later one of the women of our family saw the same flock coming down the road and ours going across the farmyard apparently to meet them. She turned back into the house to get her sunbonnet and the broom, but when she went out not one of the home flock was in sight. A moment later Ben emerged alone from behind the big straw stack in the barnyard, crossed the yard and met the intruders. Seizing the leader firmly by the neck, he marched him up the road toward his home. The visitor's numerous family, evidently too much astonished to do anything else, meekly followed.

Looking behind the straw stack, she saw Ben's flock crouched perfectly still in the straw. Not one of them stirred or uttered a sound until Ben returned and led them into the barnyard, where he struffed proudly before them with the air of one who had done his duty well. Could anyone have handled a difficult situation more intelligently? —Youth's Companion.

SNOW PENITENTS OF ANDES

Remarkable Illusion Which Is Brought About by the Action of the Elements.

In the higher Andes of Argentina and Chile, within a very limited region, where there is a polar climate in which no human beings can dwell, the so-called Snow Penitents assemble.

The traveler comes unexpectedly upon a great throng of them, gathered on the barren slope of a mountain peak. Seen from a little distance, they have the appearance of a crowd of hooded monks, all in white and kneeling in serried lines. It is a remarkable illusion, for the "monks" are not human at all, nor alive. Each one is a block of snow and ice. One theory of this phenomenon is that the fallen snow may be of uneven density and that the powerful rays of an overhead sun first melt these parts of it around the denser spots, leaving the latter still frozen, to assume the form of snow men.

As the snow continues to melt, water trickling down from the blocks may help to deepen the surrounding hollows, while prevented from accumulating in the latter by the slope of the mountains. The arrangement of the white figures in rows may be explained by the slope, the water all draining in one direction. This, however, is only one of several theories offered in explanation of the "Snow of the Penitents," as it is called in that part of the world.

Retired Persons.

The proverbial "human holiday" is nothing to that of the man who retires from business. Some months ago the manager of a London bank retired. Since then he has looked in most days "just to see how they are getting on." Equally bad is the case of a provincial theater manager, an old actor well known in London's theatrical world. He also retired, bidding his staff a long farewell with much emotion. It was understood he was going to live in a quiet little place in Surrey. A fortnight later he was back in London.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

"ALL IS WELL."

IN A clause in the will of Prof. George Trumbull Ladd, late of Yale university, a provision was made that his body should be cremated and that a portion of the ashes should be buried beside a camellia tree which he had planted in 1907 in the yard of the School of Commerce in Nagasaki, Japan.

Professor Ladd was an authority on Oriental matters and had lectured in universities in Japan and India.

"I have lived and loved and labored, and all is well," was the impressive epitaph he chose to mark his grave. Are you living and loving and laboring so that at the end of your journey you can say, "all is well?"

What a volume of meaning there is in these three monosyllables, and to do nothing more would in a little while turn and wastes to blooming gardens, and lift from the world its burden of care, its burning hates and frightful wisdom. Terrible Mars with his gleaming eyes would be vanquished.

And so would the thorny road you are traveling, while carrying in the pack on your back old animosities and jealousies that retard your progress at every step.

We have each of us some wisdom in the brain that keeps us from loving and laboring as we should.

We have within us pent-up torrents of fancies words which in sudden vents of anger we pour out and flood the smooth road ahead until it becomes impassable.

We wound the hearts of our dear ones, and sometimes the hurt remains through life.

We seemingly cannot agree on anything except hostility.

In sudden bursts of passion, to live and love and labor, that all may be well is, remove from our thoughts.

Some of us, in moments of reflection, subdued perhaps by an odd mixture of shame and self-reproach see the error of our way, and hold ourselves in check, though the brittle chafes and the bits blister.

CONDITION HARD TO IMAGINE

What Would Happen to the Sun, and Other Heavenly Bodies if There Were No Atmosphere.

Were the earth deprived of its atmosphere and existence possible under such conditions, we should find that no rosy dawn would herald the rising of the sun in the darkened east, nor gorgeous colors mark its setting in the west. The sky would be dark by day as well as by night, says a writer in London Answers.

The stars would shine brightly through the entire 24 hours, but we should see thousands more of them than are now visible on even the clearest nights. They would not twinkle in the least.

They would be seen almost up to the very edge of the sun itself, but immediately round the sun there would be a glow having the appearance of broad wings, and red flames would add their grandeur to the impressive scene.

The brilliant light would appear as a broad beam of light in the spring, up to the left of the place where the sun had set. It would be possible to study this remarkable object, and no doubt to solve quickly the mystery which has clung to it for so many centuries.

The appearance of the Milky Way would be far more magnificent than it is now, seen even from tropical equator.

A big comet would be seen months before it got to the sun, and would sweep round the sun with incredible speed and dart off into space again.

Mars and Venus could have their movements followed with ease, and any other planet there might be between Mercury and the sun would soon be discovered.

How Snakes Move.

Snakes move on their ribs. The snake's ribs are joined at the backbone and extend down over each side of the body. The ends are connected with plates on the underside of the snake. These plates have projecting edges, which take hold of the surface of objects beneath the reptile. When the snake moves his ribs, therefore, he can move forward just as rapidly and as easily as though he had a thousand legs. If you don't believe this, try the experiment of putting a snake on a smooth plate of glass and watch its vain attempts to run. The reason that the snake can move little or no distance is because the projecting edges of these plates can find nothing to take hold of on the smooth surface of the glass.

Why, of Course!

What is that which the postman, the clergyman, the fountain and the wild beasts, all alike say?

Let us pray.

Let us pray.

Let us pray.

Let us pray.

First Significant Event in Irish Free State

The first event of importance to follow the signing of the treaty that made Ireland a free state was the military evacuation of Dublin. This is the first picture of it. British soldiers police up barricade entanglements that protected Dublin Castle, City Hall of Dublin and other public buildings and prepared to leave the "battle front" while the crowd looked on.

Reports of proposed investigations, probes and inquiries into various and sundry affairs affecting our domestic and commercial life are clogging up the press these days. As a remedy for every ill there is proposed an investigation. But are they effective as far as producing results is concerned?

The occasion when these governmental investigations are productive of anything but more bitterness and venom have been rare indeed. They do, however, serve to parade the faults of contending parties before the public, which third person, realizing that it is usually a case of the pot calling the kettle black, goes on his way.

Just now there is a proposal that a nation-wide investigation of the building and housing conditions be carried out. The builders will lambast the laborers and in turn the laborers will point to the huge profits of the builders. Names will be called. The two parties the public would like to see sit down and get together will become embittered and the war will go merrily on.

And today there will be explosive calls for an investigation into the cause of the Knickerbocker catastrophe. Tomorrow another investigation will be started on something else which will cause the Knickerbocker incident to be forgotten.

Mr. Brophy, of the U. M. W. of A., wants a federal investigation of the coal industry. Mr. Brophy should not require an investigation into the war-time profits of coal operators; they are too well known. Operators say a federal investigation at this time will prove that Mr. Brophy's policies are responsible for the present condition in this district. Both believe the other fellow wrong and welcome an investigation in order that more material for mud-slinging may be obtained.

Both the operator and Mr. Brophy might get a good idea of what Mr. Average Citizen thinks by getting the thoughts of a man who is neither a mine laborer or interested in any way in the coal business. It is the good opinion of this third person that is sought.

Intelligent inquiry in any of these problems is desirable, but in the case of the operators and the miners it would appear that the public is not sufficiently interested to take part in their fight, which would never have reached the stage it has, had there been a mutual willingness to get together when trouble loomed ahead.

The man who does not read his local paper is just a little behind the Dutchman who is the subject of the following news item:

"Being four years behind the times has its thrills. Henry Hustenden, German farmer of Maconville, E. I., has just run onto the Battle of Chateau Thierry, and now he is so excited he can't do a stroke of work. During the summer Hustenden raises berries; during the winter he sits and listens to his wife read world events from a carefully hoarded stock of German newspapers, arranged chronologically. Although losing ground steadily, Hustenden (who can't read himself) has never allowed his wife to skip. Last winter he got to the sinking of the Lusitania, and could scarcely wait for fall to come.

"But haven't you known that this country was at war all along," asked a member of the American Legion.

"Ja," said Hustenden, "but I wasn't interested because I hadn't got to it yet in the papers."

"We won," said the Legionaire heartily. And then he added, "It's all over now." He felt as though he were letting the cat out of the bag.

"It's not over yet for me," answered Hustenden, returning to his wife and the stack of papers.

"Neighbors are expecting to hear a wild celebration in Hustenden's house along about April when he gets to the false armistice report."

This may appear very ridiculous, but how about a little experience the writer had at the time of the Karthaus Bank robbery. The robbery took place on Wednesday. On Saturday afternoon we met an intelligent citizen of town who informed us that the Karthaus Bank had been robbed, who said, "didn't hear anything about it?" At that time the robbers had been captured but he had just read it in the Philadelphia Record. This man does not read a local paper.

Mr. John Moody, who publishes an investors service bulletin, is evidently trying to play a little politics in between the lines. He says in his most recent bulletin that "the Disarmament Conference at Washington, although its accomplishments are disappointing, has gone far to awaken the world to the inevitable necessity for cutting down the costs of government."

There has been no "Disarmament Conference" at Washington, and Mr. Moody knows it. Why he chooses to use a deceptive title for the conference it might be well for him to explain. The conference was expressly called for the purpose of discussing "Limitation of Armaments," and the Secretary of State repeatedly called attention to the fact that there was no hope or expectation of securing "Disarmament." No man in his right mind would propose disarmament.

Mr. Moody not only uses a deceptive term in describing the Conference, but he is far from the truth in saying that the conference has been a disappointment. The fact is that the programme proposed by Mr. Hughes was so extreme that it came as a great surprise not only to the people of the United States, but to the whole world. Nevertheless, radical as the reduction programme was, it has been adopted in all essential particulars, with a saving of billions of dollars in government expense.

WATER SUPPLY BODY GIVEN AUTHORITY IN SWOOPES OPINION

Harrisburg, Jan. 27.—The state water supply commission has authority to use its discretion in regard to limiting the years for which a water power company may be chartered, but its discretion may be exercised only after an investigation of each application, according to an opinion given to Thomas J. Lynch, secretary of the commission, by Deputy Attorney General W. L. Swoope. However, such charters can not be arbitrarily limited by resolution of the commission without an investigation.

Mr. Swoope says it is a question whether the federal power commission has authority over the Clearfield river, which while considered a navigable river for state purposes, has never been declared a public highway by act of assembly.

He suggests until the federal authorities act the commission may dispose of applications for charters. The opinion was given to settle some questions which have arisen relative to power projects on that river.

First Of Final Three Funerals Of Pope Held

Rome, Italy, Jan. 30.—The first of the final three funeral services for the late Pope was begun today in the Sistine Chapel. A monumental catafalque has been erected. Members of the Sacred College, diplomats and the nobility will attend the ceremony. The arrival of several Cardinals today assured a total of at least fifty for the election of Pope Benedict's successor, with discussion and debate still rife as to whether an Italian or a foreigner will be chosen and whether the next Pontiff will be a man who will be favorable to the Italian Government. Cardinal Maffi's stock has taken a decided rise.

LARGE MID-YEAR CLASS GRADUATES AT PENN STATE

State College, Pa., Jan. 30.—Another large mid-year class of graduates will receive diplomas at the Pennsylvania State College on Tuesday evening when the regular mid-year convocation will be held. In the class of 67 men and women who will be graduated at that time are a large number who were formerly members of preceding classes, but who were delayed in their college work while in military service during the world war; and they will receive special military certificates from the college in addition to their diplomas.

The commencement address will be delivered by Dr. William D. Lewis, Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction in Pennsylvania, whose subject will be "Call for Educated Leaders." Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the college, delivered the Baccalaureate Sermon today and will confer the degrees at the commencement exercises. Seven women students are included among the list of graduates.

Local Boy In Class
Among those who will receive diplomas at the mid-year exercises is Lee G. Hills, of Clearfield, who has completed the course in industrial engineering. Hills was originally a member of the class of 1920, military service having delayed his graduation until the present time. He played a fine game at tackle on the Penn. State football team last fall.

THEATRE COLLAPSES; BANK OF CONNEAUTVILLE FAILS TO OPEN ITS DOORS; LOSS IS HEAVY

Long experience in coal mine caves is said to have warned W. H. Morris, a mining man, of impending danger. On hearing the first noise of the cracking roof, Mr. Morris, who is from Buchanan, W. V., left the theatre in haste. Before he reached the door the rush of air caught him, throwing through the door.

Many Acts of Bravery

Many brave deeds were reported today by rescuers working in the Knickerbocker Theatre wreckage, but they said Albert G. Buehler, of Washington, was the outstanding hero, giving his own life that others might live. He could have been taken from the debris fully an hour before he was, but he directed the rescuers to aid others whom he declared more seriously hurt. He died soon after he was taken from the building.

Lieut. V. M. Parsons of the Marine Corps, who assisted in directing the work, gave graphic descriptions of many individual rescues.

"We were digging into the ruins," he said, "when we saw a tuft of red hair protruding. We uncovered a small boy, probably aged 9, who told us his little sister was beneath the pile of debris also. The girl was rescued and neither she nor the boy was seriously hurt, through some miracle, but their mother, nearby, was dead."

"Dr. Gearhart, a dentist, was found pinned beneath a beam. He told us as we endeavored to extricate him that he had been conscious all night in that position. A woman beside him was dead."

"One fellow, with both legs horribly broken, asked for cigarettes as he was carried out on a stretcher. He joked with the rescuers about his mangled limbs, and remarked that he had about six legs now. He was certainly full of grit."

Miraculous Escape

Sleeping peacefully beneath the debris in the wrecked Knickerbocker Theatre, two little girls were found by rescuers ten hours after the roof had fallen. Apparently neither one was badly hurt. They were taken to a hospital.

Four hours earlier a five year old girl was found unhurt, seated between two dead women. She had evidently fallen between the seats and was protected by the bodies of the two dead women.

Conneautville, Pa., Jan. 30.—Hundreds of depositors besieged the Bank of Conneautville, leading financial institution in this section of the State, when the bank failed to open its doors today. State Bank Examiner Frank Jackson announced that it was impossible to give an estimate of the loss at this time, but rumor had it that it would reach $750,000. John P. Snodgrass, whose alleged falsification of the accounts led to the crash, was at his palatial residence here today. He will probably be arrested shortly.

Tarentum Woman Held On Extortion Charge

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Grace Crawford pleaded guilty today to sending "Black Hand" letters to two business men of Tarentum, Pa., and was held for court on a charge of extortion. Bail was fixed at $5,000. Mrs. Crawford was held when she attempted to lift a package containing a large sum of money which she demanded from Frank Irwin, of Tarentum.

LAND BIRDS FOLLOW STEAMER

Perch on Spars and Rigging of Vessels and Are Carried Far From the Land.

Land birds far from land form one of the sights to be witnessed by passengers on board the steamers crossing Lake Michigan. This is said to be especially the case on the steamers of a line, plying between Muskegon and Chicago, a distance of 100 miles. The steamers sail after dark. At sundown the spars and rigging of the vessels in the dock form good resting places for the land birds. When darkness comes and the boats begin to move it is too late for them to go ashore.

It is said to be no uncommon thing for the passengers to see a strange sight just between daylight and sunrise. "The birds are waking up and find themselves some thirty odd miles from land. They circle about the boat and they are compelled to rest on the rigging, some of them seeming much perplexed, while others make the best of circumstances.

On one trip two yellow hamsters or flickers were among the company, as well as a silent little sapsucker that pecked away at ropes and spars as if he were breakfasting heartily on crumbs. There was a frightened brown thrush as well as a pair of tiny wrens and several grass-sparrows.

The birds accompany the vessel until it reaches the other port and then fly ashore.

Home Brew Thirty Centuries Ago. For originating the art of home brewing the Persians claim credit. Thirty centuries ago, according to an account, King Darius had a great jar of grapes. Pressure of the royal sealers on those beneath, squeezed out the juice, which fermented and became sour. One of the king's wives, having learned of the liquid in the basement, which the king believed to be, and had labeled "poison," decided to use it to end her life. Although she drank freely, instead of dying, she lost her dependency and became unusually happy. The king could not understand her hilarity until she confessed. Thereafter, it is related, both the monarch and his court with frequent regularity "poisoned" themselves on home brew.

PRETTY HOUSE OF ORIENTAL DESIGN

Will Appeal to Those in Search of Something Different.

PAGODA ROOF IS DISTINCTIVE

Influence of Far East Type of Architecture Quite Apparent in Pagoda Porch and Dormer Roofs—Not Expensive to Build.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience in, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 187 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include two-cent stamp for reply.

Supply for us in particular and for the world at large, each one strives to do something different. In the case of women, they are continually striving to dress differently from their neighbor, resulting in the wonderful variety of designs and colors in women's dress. We dress differently, act differently and live differently, and as a result the world is an interesting place in which to live. If this were not the case it would be drab, monotonous and uninteresting.

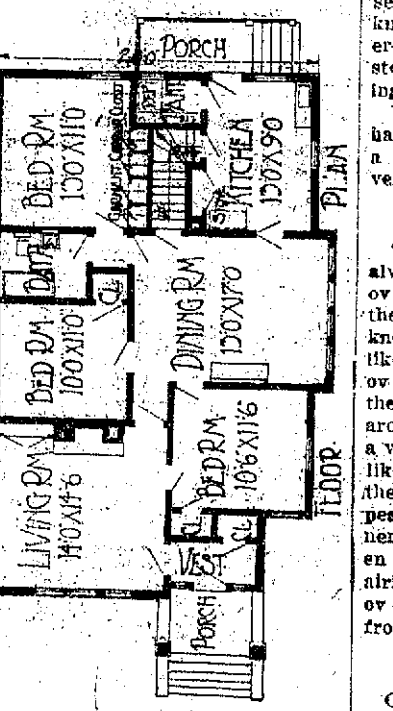

In no phase of human activity is this variety more essential and more beneficial than in the home and its environment. A string of homes of the same exterior design, same color and same material is one of the most depressing scenes that one can look at. Too often hope of profit has obscured a builder's vision to the effect this sameness of design will have in the future on that section of the city. It is inevitable that sooner or later it will degenerate into slums. Whereas, take a street of homes that are distinctive and different, they instill pride of ownership and last for generations.

That was the thought uppermost in the mind of the architect who designed this unique home of stucco and brick. It is quite exotic in appearance, the influence of Far East architecture being apparent in the pagoda porch and dormer roofs. The design takes on a certain Japanese or oriental appearance that makes it quite unusual and therefore certainly bound to appeal to those who are in search of something different.

In construction it is substantial, resting on a solid brick foundation and well lighted and equipped with a modern heating plant, fuel room, workshop and laundry. These are essential features of the modern home that should be considered carefully when drawing up the plans.

A short set of concrete steps lead the way to the front porch which is Japanese in design and small, more of a protective shelter than a lounging place. The front door with two small flanking windows opens into a small vestibule with closet for outdoor clothing, rubbers, etc. At the left of the vestibule is the door leading into the living room, a very cozy and comfortable room of good size, 14 by 14 feet 6 inches, with open brick fireplace in the wall opposite the front of the house. A triple window in the front and one window on the side afford plenty of fresh air and sunlight. The clean white stucco coating makes this house very pleasing in exterior appearance and affords quite a contrast to the dark foundation of brick and the window frames. Leading from the living room is a short hall which opens into a side bedroom, 10 by 11 feet, and the dining room on the right side of the house. The dining room is splendidly arranged and is very bright and cheerful, a row of four windows in the side providing an abundance of sunshine. At the end of the dining room the hall turns and leads to the bathroom, the end to the left and to another bedroom in the rear, 12 by 12 feet, the doorway going up. This rear bedroom is larger than the other one and is well equipped with special space-saving garment carriers which do not take up much space.

Directly in back of the dining room and connected with it by a swinging door is the kitchen, a delightfully arranged workshop for the housewife. This breakfast room, kitchen room and dining room, makes many steps for the housewife in serving meals. Moreover, the kitchen is quite small and does not call for a wide lot of unnecessary work which a larger room would require. It is completely equipped with sink, stove and cupboards. A small pantry provides extra storage space. Opening out on the rear porch from the pantry is a refrigerator with outdoor icing arrangement.

At the rear of the lot is a very attractive appearing garage of stucco, large enough to hold two cars. The owner of the house can get some extra revenue by renting out this building to some tenant. If extra room is needed in the house proper there is a very high, well lighted and ventilated attic or half story which can be made inhabitable, quickly and reasonably. There is room for at least two more bedrooms in the attic.

For a cozy all-around comfortable home this attractive little bungalow is difficult to beat. It offers convenience for the housewife, comfort for the family and a pleasing picture to the passerby. There is nothing about it that will cost a whole lot of money which is an important consideration nowadays, and it will look attractive in any neighborhood.

Yes, Not Here. The only institution that can still and produce results is a business. No firm, store, or individual who looks to the general buying public for patronage can imitate the hen and make any business progress. There may have been a time when the buyer hunted out the store that sold the article he wanted—but that was in the dead past. Today if you do not advertise the fact that you are in business to serve the public, the public will not know you. You must attract the buyer—the most patronage goes to the store that tells the people of its buying opportunities.

You have no alternative; the hen has a monopoly. If you want to be a successful merchant you must advertise.—I. C. S. Messenger.

Josh Billings on "Laffier." "There is one kind of bird that I always did recommend; it looks out over the eye just with a merry twinkle, then it keeps down on its hands and knees and plays around the mouth like a pretty moth around the blaze of a candle, then it steals over into the dimples of the cheeks and rides around in those little whirlpools for a while, then it lites up the whole face like a mello bloom on a damask rose, then it swims upon the air, with a peal as clear and as happy as a glimmer-bell, then it goes back again on golden tiptoe like an angel out for an airing, and lase down on its little bed of violets in the heart where it cum from."—Josh Billings.

Plea for the Eagles. Once there was a great reason for wanting to get rid of the bald-headed eagle in Alaska, as it was a bird that gave no end of trouble in many ways, but those days are past, the eagles are pretty well killed off and there should be a respite granted those that remain alive. After all, there is something noble in the bird, something that typifies the American character, for an old bald eagle squinting out of his eye doesn't seem to be afraid of anything that walks or flies.—Exchange.

Incompetent. "Flubdub had to get rid of his stenographer on account of her incompetency." "Pierd her?" "Married her."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Rev. Miller of Philipsburg, conducted the services in the Presbyterian church yesterday.
